

I think it's crazy that anyone I currently do business with could call me trying to sell me god knows what on a daily basis. I would like to think that if this happened to me that I would find another company to do business with however, if all the business' in my area work this way then I would be one very unhappy person.